

EXPO S-20g Section 1. Writing About Art and Visual Media (CRN: 31678)

Daniel Bosch MA, Preceptor in Expository Writing, Harvard University

Students look at works of art and read texts about the philosophy and history of visual culture. Class sessions focus on methods for analyzing art, film, and other visual media, and on strategies for reading such texts closely. Students then learn to write critical essays that develop coherent arguments about this material.
