

PSYC S-1870. Law and Psychology (CRN: 30208)

Ellsworth Lapham Fersch PhD, JD, Lecturer on Psychology in the Department of Psychiatry, Harvard Medical School, Lecturer on Psychology, Harvard University

This course compares legal and psychological approaches to human behavior and considers their interaction. Topics include criminal, ethnic, and racial profiling; confessions; the insanity defense; involuntary commitment to mental hospitals and substance abuse programs; eyewitness identification and testimony; juries; expert witnesses; and victimless crimes. The course discusses the roles of lawyers and of psychologists and psychiatrists, in theory and in practice. The course focuses on case studies and on research.